As Bosnians Argue, Peace Slips Away

By David B. Ottaway

Washington Past Service GENEVA - President Alija Izetbegovic of Bosnia came under heavy criticism Sunday from the other eight members of his delegation for agreeing to the partition of Bosnia into three ethnically based republics without first consult-ing them or even his legal advisers.

The controversy within the Bosnian delegation over the agreement bas brought to the surface a split between the Muslim president and his non-Muslim and secular colleagues, who fear that Mr. Izetbegovic has essentially accepted the creation of a purely Muslim republic in which they will have no place. These fears were heightened after word of

A Rain of Heavy Blows To the European Dream Paris and Bonn German Frailty Face a Harsh Test Cripples Unity

By Joseph Fitchett International Result Tribune PARIS -- Poblical hopes of a unified Europe will survive, but the crisis engulfing the French franc should shatter the last lingering assumptions among European leaders that they had invented a conveyor.

1990, supporters of European unity, Ger-mans most of all, have been telling them-selves that Germany would lead the way. Built on the idea of Franco-German reconbelt capable of smoothly, almost painlessly transforming their nation-states into a single entity. Staggered by public resistance when they ciliation, this unified Europe would forge a sought to ratify the Maas-

Even as governments try to maintain the theory of some currency stability, vital to a community of countries trading beavily among themselves, he explained, they have recognized that they will have to rethink their hopes that the Maastricht treaty for economic and political union could be implemented with little more than a more persuasive public relations campaign.

The political fallout of the currency crisis - forcing European leaders to the wall to salvage some semblance of their once-confident economic vision - seems bound to reinforce doubts among voters across Europe about the chances that European unity can improve their prospects against tougher international economic competition.

ing difficulties as they deliberated into the early hours of Monday on a plan to allow greater currency fluctuations against the Deutsche mark in hopes of fostering lower interest rates to revive growth and end Europe's currency crisis.

Moving dangerously closer to a self-imposed deadline of 2 A.M. in Central Europe — the opening for currency trading in Tokyo — fi-nance ministers and central bankers meeting in Brussels found themselves staring at a possible breakdown of Europe's currency grid if they failed to reach agreement.

Struggling to preserve the exchange-rate mechanism that serves as the central emblem for European unity, officials told news agency reporters that they were nonetheless considering a suspension of the system as a "last resort." That move would effectively end any effort to maintain a semblance of government influence over the volatile markets and bury any hopes of creating a single currency in the foreseeable future. European currencies would be free to float, which would allow traders to set values through supply and demand.

The plan under consideration. Spanish and French officials said, would create wider bands among several of the European currencies within the exchange-rate mechanism. Crucially, the proposal would include a modification of the central link between the French franc and the mark.

In place of the narrow range of a 2.25 percent fluctuation up or down that now governs the relationship between the mark and most other currencies remaining in the rate mechanism, officials are looking at allowing market changes of at least 6 percent, or perhaps even more, before requiring central banks to intervene to defend currency rates.

The key sticking point, one source said, was whether Germany would pledge to cui interest rates early this autumn to help bolster the efforts of other countries to dig themselves out of recession

"For the ERM to survive." said Gerard Ly-ons, chief economist at DKB International in London, "it needs to be more flexible, but also for German interest rates to be lower."

Forced by currency traders who drove the French franc Friday below its permitted floor in the European Monetary System, finance officials and central bankers met in a series of crisis sessions throughout the weekend in a race against the reopening of markets Monday morning, Unless there was coordinated government action, it appeared speculators would be in a position to deliver a final blow to y remained of Europe's fragile currency grid. Rising tensions between France and Germany, the two central players in the exchange-rate grid, surfaced in a heated debate at Saturday's preliminary session of the Community's monetary committee, which consists of lower-level finance officials and central hankers. "Yesterday evening we came close to a real catastrophe." the television statlon France 2 reported Sunday. "There was a real arm-wresthing match between France and Germany." And the dispute led to further acrimony Sunday in the higher-level talks. The plan discussed Sunday, in addition to the wider bands, may also include a devaluation of the French franc and some other currencies against the mark to permit interest rates to fall more quickly in much of Europe. Under the current system, only the weaker Spanish peseta and the Portuguese escudo may fluctuate up to 6 percent. The mark, the French franc, the Belgian-Luxembourg franc, the Dutch guilder and the Danish krone are bound by the tighter binits. The British pound and the Italian lira were forced out of the currency grid last September, during the crisis precipitated by the French referendum on the Maastricht treaty on European union. After four bours of discussions by finance ministers and top central bankers Sunday afternoon, the talks were adjourned to allow Belgium's finance minister, chairing the meeting, to attend a cabinet meeting on the royal succes-sion after the death of King Baudouin. The session resumed later. Any measures designed to save the system from collapse will be tested almost immediately this week by currency traders, who are convinced that governments have little choice but to cut interest rates sharply to provide some economic stimulus to recession-bound Western Europe. The key question Sunday night, analysis said, was whether the added flexibility would said, was whether the added highling would be enough to ease the speculative pressure on the French franc and other threatened curren-cies, such as the Danish krone and the Belgian franc. If the speculative pressure relaxes once the French franc is allowed to fall from its current levels. Paris could find room to reduce borrowing costs independently of Germany's. A hull in the crisis would also provide extra time for Europe to wait through the summer break for the Bundesbank to relax its grip on its tight monetary policy. * Ghost of Reagan Haunts Clinton Budget Proposal Mistrust of All Government Persists

By R.W. Apple Jr.

Vol. Tori Tomes Service WASHINGTON — It isn't all Bill Clinton's fault. Not by a long shot. The prosident's protracted, messy effort to push his economic program through Congress. still short of success, is viewed in some Wash-ington circles and hy many rank-and-file voters as evidence of inepitude if not incompetence. There is no doubt that the White House has made its share of mistakes in this campaign, on which the very definition of the Clinton administration may turn.

But to understand why it has been su hard for Mr. Clintun to achieve his goals, and why he wilt achieve only some of them even if Congress, as expected, gives grudging and narrow approval to some kind of budget package this ek, one has to hark back to the presidency of Ronald Reagan and the political atmosphere he created. It is still with us, and it makes Mr. Clinton look like Sisyphus on a had day.

Playing on the failures of American government in the 1960s and 1970s, Mr. Reagan successfully argued that government itself was the problem. Most federal programs were bad; taxes were bad; spending was bad.

That notion - a departure from the thinking of other recent American conservatives, such as Richard Nixon, and many conservatives in Europe, where taxes are higher - continues to event a hold over a broad section of the American electorate.

As a result, politicians are terrified to wear the awful label "tax and spend," however much their constituents need government money for health care or rouds.

"We have reached a point when people sense that the time has arrived for another period of at least moderate government activism," a moderate Republican senator said. "There are immet needs. People want problems solved. But they remain deeply skeptical about the capacity of any government to do the job, and they want the deficit reduced, too. Now," In a sense, what Mr. Clinton and the negotiators on Capitol Hill have been trying to do is work their way out of that dilemma. They have been trying to patch together majority support for enough new taxes to give the public enough deficit reduction without cutting existing social services too much, and set up a few pilot pro-grams like the proposed National Service Corps.

The difficulty of Mr. Clinton's task was un-derscored Sunday when a key Democratic sena-tor said he would vote against the president's compromise plan. But administration officials said they were still confident that the plan

New Young Star in an Old Role: Hollywood's Madam By Shawn Hubler and James Bates

LOS ANGELES -- No wonder California is in the poorhouse. Heidi Fleiss wisecracked after her arrest - they sent three police agencies and two canines to nail a 115-pound party this summer, her case has captivated the entertainment indus-try on both coasts and ignited speculation about lists of celebrity clients and heads rolling at studios.

All this because, although formal charges have yet to be filed, the police say that Miss Fleiss, 27, has for the last three years filled the niche of madam to the stars.

Within a week of her arrest, four major producers had called

Some called out of friendship. Others, Miss Fleiss Said, are concerned that the names in her big black book may come out when she goes to court on Aug. 9. "A lot of people are nervous," said one well-known producer.

WORLD BRIEFS Clinton Said to Embolden Bosnia Strike Plan for NATO

By Barton Geliman and Thomas W. Lippman Washington Post Service

WASHINGTON - President Bill Clinton has decided that Britain and France agree enough in princi-ple with the need for military intervention in Bosnia that the United States will bring such a proposal to a NATO meeting Monday in Brussels, according to a senior defense official.

Mr. Clinton and bis top national security advisers have drafted the outlines of a plan to strike at Serbian forces around Sarajevo that are "either shelling the city or contributing to the general strangulation of the city," the official said.

At the meeting Saturday with Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher; Defense Secretary Les Aspin; W. Anthony Lake, the national security adviser, and General Colin L. Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Mr. Clinton decided to bring the Monday.

The council is the political governing body of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which Mr. Clinton wants to lead any intervention in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The administration's plan, which goes well beyond a previous U.S. commitment to defend UN peacekeeping forces in UN-mandated "safe areas" in Bosnia, is likely to require deployment of additional U.S. military forces to the region. according to officials familiar with the latest planning.

"We'll have to see what the Serbian reaction will be to our initial steps." said one senior officer. "If the Serbians just hunker down, we'll have to do more. And if we have to do more, we'll need more assets. If we have to deploy one, two or three more squadrons in there, I wouldn't be surprised."

The Saturday meeting, officials said, did not "get proposal to the 16-member North Atlantic Council on Monday. down into the detailed talking points" to be brought up at the NATO meeting, but Mr. Clinton and his advisers "agreed on the strategy for pushing more than 836." referring to the UN Security Council resolution that authorizes projection of peacekeeping forces. The United States most likely will be represented by Assistant Secretary of State Stephen Oxman and by Reginald Bartholomew, the special envoy who has been monitoring negotiations in Geneva over the partition of Bosnia.

The agreement to partition Bosnia along ethnic lines accepted by the warring factions could end the fighting, but "we are talking about action, if necessary." to protect the inhabitants of Sarajevo, Bosnia's capital, and other Bosnian communities, one official said. He stressed that anything the United States did would not be unilateral.

In concept, the U.S. plan is to protect Sarajevo and the other remaining Muslim strongholds by attacking Serbian artillery positions that fire on Muslim positions and by striking other Serbian forces that inter-

France and Britam, which have long been the stronest opponents of such air strikes, are described by U.S. officials as having agreed to the outlines of the plan. But one official acknowledged that "the devil is in the details."

Among the sticking points is the American govern-ment's strong preference for running the operation through NATO's southern commander, U.S. Admiral Jeremy M. Boorda. Referring to the UN peacekeeping force headquartered in Zagreb, Croatia, one officer said the United States did not want Admiral Boorda to "have to check" with UN Protection Forces "every time he wants to make a move."

Lieutenant General Jean Cot, the UN commander in the Balkans, is French. He has expressed skepticism about use of air strikes for any reason other than protecting his peacekeeping troops.

Computed in Our Staff From Despatches BRUSSELS - Scores of Belgians, many in tears, gathered outside the royal palace here

Sunday to mourn King Baudouin, who died in Spain from heart failure. Europe's longest-reigning king, 62 died late Saturday at his summer residence, Astrida, in the fishing port of Mouril, where he had been vacationing with his Spanish-born wife, Queen Fabiola, since July 22. Baudouin, fifth king of the Belgians, whose reign began in 1951, was a popular monarch who commanded respect even from those separatist politicians who want Dutch-speaking Flanders and French-speaking Wallonia to form independent countries.

His death came only weeks after parliament had voted to make Belgium a federal state. "What sad news, just at a moment when we Baudouin had been in poor bealth since heart surgery in March 1992. He had also had a prostate operation in August 1991 after a cancerous growth was discovered.

His body was to be flown home by the Belgian air force Sunday. The king's brother, Prince Albert of Liege, along with Prime Minister Jean-Luc Dehaene and Justice Minister Melchior Wathelet, went to Motril.

Although he had no real power, the king was often called upon to even a moderating influence during crises.

President François Mitterrand of France, who had a close relationship with Bandonin, was one of the first to send condolences.

Baudouin, a 6-foot-tall, near-gaunt aristocrat who once wanted to be a Trappist monk, seemed ill at ease in his royal role and sought to remove the monarchy as much as possible from the rough and tamble of politics.

But in April 1990, he sparked a constitutional crisis when he refused because of his Catholic principles to sign a law legalizing abortion, and abdicated. Belgium remained without a king for. 44 hours, until Bandouin was reinstated by a parliamentary vote.

River Rises but Levees Hold as St. Louis Battles Flood

Compiled by Our Staff From Disputches ST. LOUIS. Missouri — The Mississippi River bulged Sunday toward a record crest, but an 11-mile levee protecting St. Louis held, even as other embankments to the south, west and north were breached. South of the city, divers worked to stabilize huge, highly flammable propane tanks torn loose by earlier floodwaters.

The 30,000-gallon (114,000-liter) tanks, at a Phillips Pipeline facility in south St. Louis, had been knocked off their moorings by the Mississippi River as it spilled over a levce.

"There's a big danger," said a St. Louis police sergeant. "If the tanks rupture, the propane would escape and form a cloud that could ignite and explode," he said. "It could create n massive chain reaction "

The threat forced the evacuation of 700 businesses and homes, many with elderly and disabled residents, in a half-square-mile (1.3-square-kilometer) area where the River Des Peres meets the Mississippi.

But the Army Corps of Engineers warned a crest as high as 51 feet was possible. "It would be prudent to prepare for 50 or 51 feet." said a spokesman Ken Kruchowski. "Predicting erest levels is not an exact science. At this stage of the game, with the river as high as it is, it's better to be safe than sorry."

Another corps official said the levee protecting SL Louis was expected to stand firm against rising cur-rents as it had been "designed for a 52-foot stage," and there was an additional two-foot contingency at the IOP.

St. Louis now is the focal point of the two months of flooding in nine Midwestero states that has contributed to 45 deaths and caused an estimated $10 billion in damage. About 50,000 people in the region have been forced to leave their homes.

The Mississippi rose to 49.4 feet at St. Louis early on Sunday but receded slightly early in the afternoon The National Weather Service forecast a new Mis- after a levee break near Columbia, Illinois, just south The Columbia breach uprooted barns, sheds, silos and farmhouses. Frantie sandbagging efforts were taking place in St. Charles County, Missouri, north and west of St. Louis, which faces the wrath of both the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. Many of its levees have long since been washed away, and areas that previously had stayed dry were flooded on Sunday.

"There are a lot of levees being overtopped, a lot of new areas being flooded by the Missouri and Missis-sippi," said a Corps of Engineers official. North of SL Louis, the Mississippi burst through a sandbag levee and flooded central Alton, Illinois, a city of 34,000, police said.

Central St. Louis and the city's famous Gateway Arch sit on higher ground, safe from the flooding.

But in the south end of the city. leaks popped all along a four-mile (6.5-kilometer) levee protecting homes on the River Des Peres, ordinarily a narrow drainage channel that feeds the Mississippi.

Water also rose through the sewer system in the River Des Peres area, threatening huodreds of wood-frame tract homes, many of which were flooded dur-ing the last crest. Officials went door-to-door Sunday ling people to leave. Ic

The city's western suburbs came under siege late Friday when water burst through a Missouri River levee in Chesterfield, flooding farmland, bundreds of businesses and the Spirit of St. Louis Airport, a general aviation facility.

From the air, all that was visible above the murky water at the airport, one of the busicst general aviation airports in the state, were the roofs of some hangers, the tails of aircraft and the control tower. Most residents had fled in time. But about 30 people bad to be plucked off roofs by hoat or helicopter.

The flooding forced the cancellation Saturday of relief concerts featuring Bob Dylan, John Mellencamp and others. A major highway was closed by high water, and authorities feared 20,000 concert-goers would delay emergency workers by clogging the remaining roads. (AP, Reuters, WP)

Perot Flunks Quiz on His Budget Plan

WASHINGTON — Ross Perot, who says Congress should reject President Bill Clinton's economic program in favor of one that would balance the budget, was asked Sunday how he would balance

it. He couldn't say. Under questioning from a panel of reporters on a television interview show, the Texas businessman responded defensively about the details of his own proposed spending cuts, the gaps in his plan and the impact of his budget on lower-income Americans.

"Well, if you had told me that you wanted that, I would have come in with a very detailed list and given it to you." Mr. Perot said in answer to a question about how he would achieve the $141 billion in Medicare and Medicaid cuts his plan calls for. He was reminded that he had been asked a similarly detailed question about the bealth care figures on national television earlier this year. The Texas businessman shot back that the reporters were trying "to do a gotcha" on him and said it was pointless to debate his plan when it was Mr. Clinton's plan that was before Congress. (WP)

Ms. Alexander's advocates have argued that her distinction as a performing artist would inspire a demoralized constituency of artists and their supporters and that she would present a difficult target for critics of the endowment. The arts endowment and the National Endowment for the Humanities have in recent years been attacked by members of Congress and others who question the federal government's role in cultural affairs, specifically in awarding grants to artists whose work treats sexual and religious subjects in a controversial way. In a First, Comet Grounds the Shuttle

By William J. Broad

New York Times Service NEW YORK - Celestial events rarely influence NEW YORK — Celestral events rarely miluence the course of burnan history, but a passing comet has forced the U.S. space agency to postpone a planned flight of the space shuttle Discovery. The comet has left an unusually heavy shower of debris in the intend-ed path of the craft, which raises the risk of collision. It is the first time that a NASA astronaut mission has been delocated by a matter shore.

has been delayed by a meteor shower. The Perseids shower is one of the most spectacular sights of the summer sky. This year the shower is expected to be exceptionally strong because of the recent passage near the Earth of its source, the comet Swift-Tuttle, a mountain of ice and dirt 6 miles 110 kilometers1 wide that sbeds debris as it travels. On the nights of Aug. 11 and 12, the shower is expected to reach a once-in-a-lifetime neak in which the night sky comes alive with dozens of flashes of light every minute. Pondering all this, belatedly perhaps, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that it would postpone yet again the star-crossed mission of Discovery, which had been scheduled to blast off Wednesday on a oine-day flight that would

The space agency said the shower was expected to be extremely heavy, "increasing the chances that a spacecraft in Earth orbit could be damaged by a piece of the dehris."

Although the risk of a space collision is considered small, NASA officials say the increased odds are too great to ignore. So the shuttle mission, twice delayed by technical problems, will be postponed until Aug. 12, when the shower will have passed its peak, Shuttles often fly through meteor showers, and normally take little note of them. Usually they are relatively small, and the risks they present are far smaller than those posed by the man-made debris that circles the Earth.

Experts say exploded satellites and discarded rockets have created about 30,000 pieces of space junk. Although most pieces are about the size of an aspirin tablet, they move so fast that the force of an impact oo a spacecraft could equal that of a small bomb.

The comet Swift-Tuttle is in an orbit that repeats itself every 130 years or so, all the while creating a river of particles in its wake. As Earth passes through this river each year, the sky is filled with flashes of light when the pieces buro up in the atmosphere.

INTERNATIONAL HERALD TRIBUNE, MONDAY, AUGUST 2, 1993

Q & A: After Storms, Real European Monetary Union?

One of the most outspoken critics of the way the European Monetary System has operated during the past few years has been Rudiger Dornbusch, professor of economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. With the EMS close to collapse, he talked last week with Lawrenc. Malkin of the International Herald Tribune.

Q. The EMS in your view it has outlived its usefulness in its present form. Why?

A. It was a very productive as a system of convergence with occusional realignments to less and less frequent ones, but the world has changed. Germany has a had inflation problem, one of the worst in the postwar period, and France has no inflation problem for the first time in the postwar period and is moving into a severe recession. Suddenly, what was a good system has become a very difficult one to use. France wanted a premature hardening of the EMS, and Germany wants to fight inflation. The two are fundamentally incompatible. These are narrow considerations of economic tactics, and nothing more, but the issue is loaded with credibility.

Q. Then the Germans should not have cut their rates during the week?

A. Germany does have an inflation problem -you can quibble about the exact timetable for reducing it — but over the last year they have done the right thing. If they cut their rates an extra quarter of a percentage point, what difference would it have made? People were hanging on the lips of the Bundesbank to see if there was a slight smile or not. and that would only postpone the problem by a week.

You have a country like Belgium with a fantastic public debt, totally unable to bear high interest rates. You have Spain, with unemployment rates of 25 percent. They are deeply sick. They have to depreciate their currencies to order to have radically lower interest rates. The only way to do that is to have undervalued currencies. For them, the Bundesbank can do nothing. And even for France, the size and timing of the German cuts that have already taken place are out of line with any serious French economic policy.

Q. Economists like you often argue that econo-miss can be adjusted by fiddling with exchange rates, especially in high trading areas like Europe. Don't you need to do more than that?

A. It really is the interest rate that is critical between Germany and France. If France runs 4 percent interest rates, the only way I would hold French francs is if I think the franc is undervalued. Letting the French franc go gives Germany a com-can allies.

The Bundesbank has argued this line for a year and a half; they have said. "Let us float and the problem would be easier in handle." The trouble is that they couldn't say it too loud - because then it would have happened. But there is no question that they have proposed it to the French over and over again. So don't just hlame the Bundesbank. Blame in part the French, who put all their macho into the franc. They could not win with the insane real interest rate they imposed, creating a recession that violates common sense every morning. When the new Balladur government came in, I said that this was the time in link their currency and policy completely with Germany, or to float. They missed their chance, and then they said they were the tough guys, tougher than the Germans, and that didn't work

Q. How should the new system be built? A. The immediate priority is 10 loosen up the strainjacket of exchange rates so that countries have petitive problem, but Germany would also have more room to set interest rates in line with inflation disinflation much faster. When the French franc and their own conditions. What comes afterward? Io goes down, German import prices go down with it - a year or 18 months, Germany will have fought its and that means the Bundesbank can declare more inflation and will have low rates. France will already rapid success on disinflation, which means more have had them and also had a good time in the pressure on German firms not to give wage in-creases. The Bundesbank could then cut interest rates. European country. A year and a half would be a good time to set new rates and move again toward European Monetary Union, which is still the objective.

Q. How can you be sure this mess doesn't happen again? A. You have to do it so you get married. In the 1980s, they were only going steady. In the last two years they were engaged, with much discussion about the marriage contract — but that was far off. The marriage should be a European Monetary Union: a joint independent central bank, no further possibility of independent national policies. There is no need for a grand design. The right way is prag-matic: take the harder currencies, France and Garmany, put them together and let their independent central banks jointly run monetary policy. The mo-ment Genmany has the financial stability that France has, they can go back together.

U.S. Will Pressure Syria on Arms for Hezbollah Militants to press the Syrian government this week to bar access to Iranian cargo planes laden with arms for Hezbol-lah militants in southern Lebanon, U.S. officials said.

The decision to request the Syrian action stems from U.S. intelligence assessments that most if not all of the rockets and other arms. being used against Israeli forces during this week's fighting were ferried in Hezbollah forces by track from the Damascus autport, the officials said.

They said the Iranian arms were delivered to the airport before the routine Israeli skirmishes with Hezbollah forces erupted into a major exchange of fire last Monday. The deliveries have been made by clear-ly marked Iran Air planes, including Boeing 747s adapted for carry-ing cargo, in flights occutring between one and four times a month for several years, the officials said. "It's been like a regularly scheduled flight," said one official privy in classified intelligence reports on the shipments. "You can watch the planes land and unload." Included in some of the ship-ments are the Katyusha rockets and Sagger anti-tank missiles that have alarmed Israeli forces and prompted Israeli citizens in flee to bomb shelters, U.S. officials said. "There are more deadly weap-"There are more deady weap-ons, heavier weapons, in much larg-er quantities arriving through Syr-ia," a senior U.S. official said. He said that Mr. Christopher had "been on the phone with the Syrian foreign minister three times in the last four days over the issue of the weaponry." The United States has known about the Iranian arms pipeline through Syria to Hezbollah for years. But the administration sought to avoid any new public comment about Syria's longstand-ing role as Mr. Christopher pre-pared for a trip in the Middle East this week. Privately, the adminis-tration implored the Syrians not to allow any immediate resupply of Hezbollah, officials said. Past U.S. complaints about the Iran Air flights have been rebuffed amborities in Damascus. But U.S. officials said Mr. Christopher. whose principal mission during his tin is to promote progress in regional peace oegotiations, plans to emphasize that fighting provoked by any rearmament of Hezbollah partisans could seriously undermme those talks.

But in Lebanon, the head of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah guerrilias, Sheikh Hassan Nasrallah, said that no one could agree to a comprehensive cease-fire with Israel and that "even in the matter of rocket attacks there is no cease-fire or agreement." Prime Minister Yuzhak Rabin warned that he was ready to resume hostilities if the tocket attacks were senewed on northern Israel.

Mr. Rabin, at a briefing with the parliament's Foreign Affairs Com-mittee, said Israel still had the forces in place to attack beyond its self-declared security zone. ...

"We have to be careful and see how the understandings are real-ized," the prime minister said. "I am not impressed by words, only by deeds. This will be the yardstick for what follows."

Palestinian guerrillas, shortly be-fore dawn, fired anti-tank rockets at a post manned by Israeli's ally. the South Lebanon Army militia. There was a brief exchange of mortar and machine-gun fire but no reports of casualties.

A hitherto-unknown Palestinian group took responsibility for the attack.

Israeli officials said they did not consider the attack a serious breach of the cease-fire agreement. These officials said that the agreement, orchestrated by Secre-tary Christopher, did not prohibit attacks on Israeli positions in the 15-kilometer-deep (nine-mile) buffer zone in sonthern Lebanon, set up by Israel in 1985, and did not call for the disarming of the Hezbollah guerrillas. Israel began to withdraw tanks and troops from the zone. At least 50 tanks, annored personnel carti-ers, jeeps and 150 soldiers streamed south into Israel. But some 45 howitzers remained in place. About 90 busloads of Israelis, who had fled their homes in the north, returned home. Stores, banks and businesses reopened in the border town of Kiryat Shemone, and residents, after a week of living with relatives further south or waiting out the attack in bomb shelters, moved back home.

Both must now count on facing stronger and-EC sentiments, which are liable in worsen strains within their parties. Particularly Mr. Balladur, who has built his position as a moderate partly on his backing of the pro-European views of President Francois Mitterrand, will face a stronger revolt from factions of his Gaullist party who believe that France needs more financial independence un create jobs. Similar Euroskepticism will be fueled in other European countries, too. But the backlash will be most acute in France and Germany because the solid tie between the two countries' currencies symbolized the idea that Germany's economic model was a panacea, the key to a prosperous and therefore politicalv buoyant Europe. As the currency crisis has loomed, Bonn and Paris have often seemed out of phase. Its onset last week, after the Bundesbank's widely criticized refusal to cut German interest rates, seemed to come as a surprise to French policymakers. Small frictions recently marred the French-German coordination

Indian Jet Safe

After Hitting Jeep United Press Interne BOMBAY --- An Air-India jet-liner en route from Frankfurt with more than 400 people on board struck a jeep while landing at Bombay's airport Sunday but manage to land safely, airport officials said. One of the engines on the Boeing 747 struck the vehicle, which was traveling across the runway as the plane was landing, officials said. The jeep overturned, seriously injuring its two occupants, both identified as officials of the state-run India. None of the plane's 387 passengers and 21 crewmembers was reported injured. The accident, however, resulted in a disruption of flights diverted to other cities, officials said.

In Azerbaijan, a Brezhnev-era KGB chief again bolds sway after orchestrating a coup against a democratically elected president. Mikhail Gorbachev had ousted this apparatchik for his corruption and opposition to reforms, but today be maintains close ties with local Russian military commanders.

In Georgia, local Russian military units have thrown their weight behind etbnic secessionists who want Moscow to annex part of the country.

In Moldova, Russian troops bave sided with ethnic Russians seeking special territorial status.

In the Baltics, Russian troops are withdrawing, but the second-class political status of Russian civilians has become a major issue. And Russian nationalists, military and civilian, assert claims to territories now in Ukraine, like the Crimean Peninsula and even the Doubass coalfields.

Progress for Japanese

Democracy is alive and well in Japan. It is only a first step, of course, but the millions of Japanese who voted two weeks ago for an end to the corrupt "money politics" of the longruling Liberal Democratic Party are about to get their reward. Morihiro Hosokawa bas been chosen by a wide coalition of former opposition parties as their nominee for prime minister. His ratification by the Diet this week is considered a sure thing. The aristocratic Mr. Hosokawa left the LDP more than a year ago, before such defections were seen as a shrewd career move. He has become the personal symbol of a new, cleaner political style.

Meanwhile, the LDP, still Japan's largest party, chose a new reformist leader of its own. Even if the new coalition quickly crumbles, the reform ideas that won the election are poised to persist.

Symbolically, at least, Mr. Hosokawa is the perfect choice. Other leading opposition contenders, like Tsutomu Hata and fchiro Ozawa, were ton recently at the center of LDP scheming to be credible exemplars of renewal. Both are experienced and agile politicians, and if their recent political conversions prove real they could get a turn at the top later on. The relatively untested Mr. Hosokawa faces a daunting challenge. He must hold ogether a group of parties and personalities

President Bill Clinton might call for advice, The coalition platform talks about issues from economic stimulus to foreign policy, But its main focus will be political reform crafting a new and more representative electnral system and enacting tight campaign finance restrictions. If it manages that, the coalition could attract enough independents and LDP defectors to lay the basis for a stable two-party system. Real political competition would offer the best insurance against the return of old-style corruption and give ordinary Japanese citizens maximum clout.

Americans should not expect overnight transformation of Japan into a consumer society. Most Japanese see some advantages in their producer-oriented system, like low unemployment and the survival of small neighborhood shops. But few see any advantage in the present political role of organized crime or in hid rigging designed to help one giant firm over another. Washington needs to extend a supportive and understanding hand to Tokyo in what looks like an extended period of political transition.

Wisely, Mr. Clinton showed a new sensitivity on his recent Tokyo trip, backing off from the harsh trade rhetoric of last spring, Rhetorical bullying now would not only be counterproductive. It would jeopardize a still fragile democratic renewal. That renewal represents Japanese teachers allowed in universities and schools. Either France and the rest would have to suffer Andersen's tale, the men who hrought Europe to its present sorry pass did so hy claiming to believe in the existence of something that was the deepening recession caused by high interest rates, or Germany would have to suffer the rising not there. Their policy on Europe's currencies, inflation caused by a cut in interest rates. (And rising German inflation would have hindered all and the political union they prescribed for Euof Europe's search for economic recovery.) There was no "European" economy, Thererope in the Maastricht treaty, presupposed a "Europe" that did not exist - a single European consciousness, an all-embracing sense of fore there could be no pretense of a "European" currency, in the shape of those glued-together marks and francs and so on. The Bundesbank in Frankfurt made its choice, and Frankfurt clobbered the franc fort.

An economy does not have to be utterly homogeneous in order to have a single currency. The United States has the dollar, even though New York's economy is by no means the same as Michigan's or California's. But these intra-American differences are not fatal for the dollar, because New Yorkers and Californians and the rest all feel they are Americans, one people in a single country. The intra European economic differences are far more divisive, because Europe has not yet achieved that single consciousness. It has not woven for itself the robe of unity that, in America, the emperor can and does wear. The unity that cludes Europe in the realm of money is even more impossible when it comes to politics, because political union depends even more on a sense of shared identity. Nothing ing that he had, by saying they saw a "Europe" that was not there, the old men of Maastricht have done grave damage to the real Europe, and shows this more clearly than the original cause o Europe's disaster in ex-Yugoslavia. Back in mid-1991, when it became clear that ugoslavia was breaking up. Germany wanted the European Community to recognize the inde-pendence of Croatia and Slovenia. If the other Europeans had agreed — sending troops to guard Croatia's frontier, while insisting that Croana did the right thing by its Serbian minority — the Serbs of Serbia itself might never have crossed the border, and much of the past two years' borror might have been avoided.

But the other Europeans refused, partly be-cause they suspected that Germany was trying to create a private German zone of influence in the Croat-Slovene ex-Hapsburg part of Yugoslavia. The only thing the European Community could agree to do was — nothing. The Serbs saw this, and marched over the border. A third of Croana had been seized, and the rest of the disaster was inexorably unfolding, before the Croats belatedly got the Community's recognition. It does not matter, in this context, what the Germans' motive in mid-1991 really was. The point is that there was instantly assumed to be a German purpose, which was different from France's purpose, which was not necessarily the same as Britain's, and so on. There was no "European" purpose, and therefore no "European" action, because there was no "Europe." The only stance that Europeans could jointly agree upon was one of futile, indeed destructive, immobility. The claim of "Europe" should start to fade as the ERM hlurs, a single Eurocurrency becomes an even remoter prospect, and the Maastricht treaty thus loses its last shred of credibility. Now the real Europe has to start its recovery from the damage done by those quotation marks.

Do not believe those who say it cannot be done. There will indeed be some furious recriminations. The Germans are angry with the French for wanting constant German support -- for the franc, and for French farmers -- without giving anything in return. The French are wild about "Anglo-Saxon" plots in the money markets and about the Bundesbank's "betrayal." A bitter France could be even harder to cajole into a new GATT world trade deal — which is the reason for fearing that the damage done by all this nonsense may not be confined to Europe alone.

Nevertheless, a sane Europe can be reassem-bled. Europe Mark 1, the original Community, worked perfectly well for decades without a single currency or a single center of political power. Europe Mark 2, the single market, has so far got on fine without either of those things (although it does need some loose system of exchange rate self-discipline). Europe Mark 3 will be a club of independent countries. They will share a barrier-free economic space. They will act as one in the world when all of them agree to do so, but disagreement will not force a fatal immobility upon the entire club. This is not the Europe that was sought by the old men of Maastricht, the Knhls and Delorses and Mitterrands. But it is a Europe that the people of Europe can cheerfully live with. And it is a Europe that will not dissolve into thin air when the cold eye nf reality falls upon it.

Yes, Beijing Should Get The Games

By Jonathan Kolatch

W ASHINGTON - The Interna-tional Olympic Committee will meet in Monte Carlo next month to decide which of six cities will host the Summer Olympics of 2000. Beijing Summer Olympics of 2000. Beging and Sydney are leading candidates. In Washington, ohlivious to the his-toric wave of pragmatism that has swept over China since the 1989 crack-down, as well as to the wishes of ordinary Chinese, Senators Bill Brad-ley and Dennis DeConcini and Repre-constitue Torn Lantes in parallel Sensentative Tom Lantos, in parallel Senate and House resolutions, are branding Beijing unsuitable as host of the Olympic Games on human rights grounds. They interweave dubious fact with blatant distortion.

In testimony before the Senate Commerce Committee debating his anti-Beijing bill, Mr. Bradley made the preposterous assertion that a million Chinese were jailed at the time of the 1990 Asian Games in Beijing. While most-favored-natinn status encourages "positive developments" in Chi-na, Mr. Bradley continued, hosting the Olympic Games curiously would not, Mr, DeConcini somehow fnund encouragement in the deteriorating economic and civil order in the fnrpots and dictators, a vote for Beijing in 2000 will go far toward guaranteeing a continuing orderly transition from au-thoritarianism to a more open China. The Chinese lack freedom of expression and free elections and contin-ue to have limited job choice. But they enjoy freedom to acquire a passport and travel abroad, freedom to go into private business and get rich or go bankrupt, access to global information through proliferating satellite televi-sion, and widely available telephones and faxes with which to share their private thoughts. China is a country beaded toward the next century, and most Chinese appreciate this. On a recent trip to six Chinese cit-ies, I queried dozens of people strata, including many who had use adamantly opposed to the Beying Asian Games, about their feelings to-ward the 2000 Olympics. The most negative responses elicited were isolated expressions of apathy. It would be a foolisb Chinese government that would risk the goodwill and financial benefits of the Olympic Games (as Moscow did in 1980 over Afghanistan) by cracking the whip in Hong Kong. Finally, China deserves the Olym-pics because Asia deserves the Olympics. Europe has hosted the Summer Games 15 times, the Americas five. Asia, with 60 percent of the world's population, has bosted the games only twice. Beijing is Asia's overwhelming chnice for the Olympic Games. Killing Homeless Children

No part of the world is immune to violence. Affairs cites Guatemala as another danger rom armed conflicts in the Middle East to thnic bloodbaths in Bosnia and South Africa persecuted, a few are being offered more than From armed conflicts in the Middle East to ethnic bloodbaths in Bosnia and South Africa to the rising gun- and drug-related death tolls in American cities, people are being killed on a sickening scale. Yet last week's carnage in Rio de Janeiro - the slaying of eight homeless children as they slept on the streets - stands out as especially shocking and disgusting.

The victims were from among the estimated 3,000 homeless youngsters who fend for themselves on Rio's streets. By day, many get by by seeking bandouts, hustling odd jobs or ma-rauding. By night, they huddle together on cardboard and blankets in the slums or along main thoroughfares. The killers, allegedly offduty military police officers, found their victims near a church square in the financial district. They reportedly shot several on the spot, while others were chased down or ambushed in other locations.

The terrible aspect of this crime is that it is distinguished only by the number of its victums - and by the number of gangs doing the killing. In Rio, street children are executed all the time, according to a Brazilian buman rights organization. The triggermen are not only teenage rivals, they are also vigilante groups and age rivals, they are also vigitance groups and rogue cops who have arrogated to themselves the roles of judge and executioner. II, as au-thorities report, 4,611 children and adolescents were murdered in Brazil from 1988 to 1991. then these death squad killings have indeed reached alarming proportions by any standard. Brazilians, already under economic pressures, have a human rights crisis of the first order on their hands. Rio is not the only Brazilian city, nor Brazil the only Latin nation, where homeless youngsters face system-atic hrutality. The Council on Hemispheric

Ecu Bonds Could Benefit As a Medium-Term Haven

By Tim Farrand Remers

ONDON - Ecu bonds stand to lose out against most European debt investments in the short term from a collapse of the European Monetary System's exchange-rate mechanism, analysts said, but they could later benefit

"What we will have is a short period where the emotional response is negative," said Bob Tyley, head of bond analysis at Paribas Capital Markets, "but once things settle down and go back to sound evaluation, the value of the Ecu will be clear." Analysts said if market volatility grew as a result of a collapse of the exchange-rate mechanism, investors may turn to the European Carrency Unit, or Eca, for comfort.

2001 was quoted at a yield of 7.33 percent against 6.35 on the 8.5 percent French Treasury note due March 2000. Bond analysis said if the exchange-rate mechanism was kept intact, and if the authorities quickly set new parity levels that proved accurate, then interest would return to the Ecu in the next few weeks.

Ecu bond market may represent a way of benefiting from a decline in short-term rates in at least two or three of those currencies with less risk," said Michael Pratten, an economist at Kidder, Peabody Securities Co.

Some analysts saw a silver lining : in the apparent recognition by European officials that the existing , currency parities, by undermining economic growth, were doing more harm than good to Europe's hopes of restoring the momentum toward further unity.

"The only hope for further integration in the long run is a healthy tween the Iranc and the mark. For raising profound questions about pressed for Paris to accept a un-European economy," said Brendan Paris, any confession of failure how far the German government is facto devaluation of its currency.

As they went behind closed doors Sunday, European officials sought to rally support for the 14year-old system designed to maintain exchange rate stability. "The European Monetary Sys-fairs commissioner, said that offecials hoped to do whatever they could to prevent the destruction of Europe's currency grid.

The latest crisis, which began building more than a week ago, was brought to a head last Thursday by the Bundesbank's reluctance to lower the official floor under its short-term interest rates.

BRUSSELS - EC finance ministers and central bankers were reportedly discussing six options. Sunday to try to resolve the currency crisis:

· Widen trading margins, or hands, for all the currencies to allow more flexibility. Currencies in the exchange-rate mechanism are now allowed to fluctuate against one another by as much as 2.25 percent in either direction. The exceptions are the Spanish peseta and the Portuguese escudo, which may diverge by as much as 6 percent, · Widen the trading bands only for some currencies namely the Deutsche mark and the Dutch guilder, which are at or near their ceilings against the other currencies.

• Maintain the status quo, but reinforce intervention methods. This would aim to make speculation more expensive.

· Fix the exchange rates for some member countries. If, for example, the French franc and the mark were locked together in fixed rate, this would effectively create a single currency for the two countries. Speculators would not be able to make any money by buying or selling the franc against the mark because the exchange rate would be fixed.

· Pull the system's strongest currencies, the mark and guilder, from the grid. This would take the pressure off the weaker currencies and allow other member countries of the exchange-rate mechanism to reduce interest rates.

 Allow all the currencies in the system to float. Late Sunday, officials reportedly had narrowed the decision to the first three options listed above. which involve widening the fluctuation bands within the exchange-rate mechanism and bolstering the rules on central bank intervention. There were earlier reports that the officials would also consider allowing EC governments to impose currency contiols. This would restrict the movement of capital making it punitively expensive to speculate on de-າລາມລະບົບກະ. (Bloomberg, Knight-Ridder)

TOKYO - The Bank of Japan will intervene in the foreign-ex-change market if the yen moves higher following the European monetary crisis, the Nihon Keizai Shimbun reported on Sunday

The economic daily newspaper said the central bank believes the yen has become a target of speculative funds flowing out of weak European currencies.

The Bank of Japan was reported to have sold yen and bought dollars through the Bank of England in London interbank dealings Friday. The dollar touched a record

Scandinavian Golf last qualifying tournament, the The Assertated Press KUNGSBACKA. Sweden -German Open late this month. It was the second Masters title Peter Baker of Britain beat Anders Forsbrand of Sweden with a par on for Baker in two months. He won the British Masters in early June by the second playoff hole Sunday to seven shots for the biggest winning win the Scandinavian Masters golf tournament. Forsbrand bogeyed the 18th margin on the European Tour this year after a final round of 63. Forsbrand became the second Swede to lose a playoff in a European Tour event in Sweden to a British player. Gordon Brand Jr. of Scotland beat Magnus Persson six years ago in the Scandinavian Forsbrand, trying to become the Open, forerunner to the Masters. Nick Faldo, six shots behind Baker going into the final round, hirdied three straight holes from the 11th and another birdie on the 16th moved him to 8-under for the rookie from Trinidad and Tobago. was alone in sixth place at 283 after tion, while the three others will be a 73.

Rodger Davies of Australia matched Forsbrand's 69 and tied for fourth at 282 with David Feherty of Northern Ireland, who closed with a 71. Stephen Ames, a European Tour

Colin Montgomerie of Scotland, who captured the Dutch Open last week and was the winner of this tournament two years ago, shared seventh with Robert Karlsson of Sweden at 284.

 Fuzzy Zoeller and Nick Price shared the lead at 13-under-par 200 heading into the final round Sanday of the Memphis Classic on the 7.006-yard Tournament Players Club at Southwind.

Price, who had a 66 Saturday, took the lead with four birdies on the front nine, but fell within Zoeller's reach when he bogeved holes 14 and 17. He three-putted the 14th and hit a 4-iron approach wide on the 17th.

Zoeller, who fired a 65 for the third round, sank a 40-foot birdie put from the edge of the green on the par-4, 430-yard 13th. Gil Morgan, Fred Funk and Rick Fehr were at 202, and second-round leader Jeff Maggert was joined at 203 by Mark Brooks and Davis Love 3d. Morgan and Brooks shared the day's low score at 64, Funk shot 65, Love 66 and Fehr 68. Maggert fell to a 71.

"I never thought it would hap-ped again." said Pernfors, who last reached a final when be won the Eagle Classic in 1988. The 30-year-old Swede, who reached a career-high, season-end-ing ranking of 12 in 1986, had Achilles tendon surgery before the 1991 season and played last year on the satellite circuit.

His victory Saturday earned him a meeting Sunday for the winner's purse of $235,000 with hard-hitting Todd Martin, the 13th seed who drubbed unseeded fellow American Richey Reneberg. 6-3. 6-4. in the other semifinal.

Pernfors has been working his way back since the surgery. His ranking dropped as low as 1.001 in 1491. He had raised it to No. 95 going into the Canadian Open, giv-ing him direct entry into the field for the first time this year. He is the lowest ranked player ever to reach the Canadian Open final.

A's Trade Henderson to Blue Jays

The Associated Pres

OAKLAND. California - Rickey Henderson, traded by the Oakland Athletics to Toronto, said he was looking forward to helping the Blue Jays win the American League East.

The trade was agreed to by Toronto, Oakland and the outlielder, who had a oo-trade elause in his contract. Henderson had expressed some reluctance to waive the no-trade elause beforehand, saving he hoped to gel compensation for agreeing to the waiver. "Everything is negotiable," Henderson said. "It's a business, you know I'm just a businessman myself."

Sandy Aldersoo, the A's general manager, said it took three hours to hash out the compensation for Henderson, but declined to reveal what the player got, or what each team contributed, saying only, "There were considerations."

Henderson also got a guarantee from the Blue Jays that he will be allowed to become a free agent after the season. Toronto could have denied Henderson that chance by offering him salary arbitration at the end of the season

Rickey has had two very fice careers in Oakland, and he's going to Toronto for the remainder of this season," Alderson said. "We'll see what happens in the fall. We wish him well."

Henderson, who signed a four-year, $12 million contract in 1990, seemed bappy about the chance to leave Oakland, even before the trade was official

"I've suffered for four years," said Henderson, who tried without success to get the A's to rework the cootract. "They dogged me for four years. Everybody needs something, I need something, they need something

He added; "If they want to trade me, buy my no-trade. Then they can trade me wherever they want."

In exchange for Henderson, Oakland receives right-handed pitcher Steve Karsay, who was Toronto's first-round pick in 1990, and a player to be named later.

At Class AA Knoxville of the Southern League this season, the 21-yearold Karsay was 8-4 with a 3.38 ERA in 19 games, including 18 starts. He struck out 100 and walked 32, while allowing 98 hits and 39 earned runs in 104 innings.

A trade for Henderson had been expected because the A's are not a factor in the American League West race.

Aldersoo said Henderson had 72 hours to report to the Blue Jays, and he expected the flashy outfielder to join the team on Monday or Tuesday in New York, another of his former stomping grounds. Toronto starts a lour-game series Monday against the Yankees. The last time Henderson was in the final year of a contract, the Yankees traded him to Oakland oo June 20, 1989, and he helped the A's win the World Series. The Athletics also reached the World Series the next season.

Henderson, baseball's career stolen base leader with 1.073, is considered one of the few players able to carry a team by himself. He has started games with home runs a record 62 times, is the only player in history with more than 1,000 steals and has a career .292 batting average.

This season, Henderson is batting .327 with 47 RBIs and 31 stolen bases

At Torooto, he joins a formidable lineup that features major league batting leader John Olerud, Paul Molitor, Roberto Alomar and Joe

Deal-less in Seattle As Deadline Passes

The Toronto Blue Jays got Rickey Henderson, the Chicago White Sox got Tim Belcher and another team was suffed right when the major league trading deadline came and went without much happen-

A deal that would have sent 6-foot-10 left-hander Randy Johnson packing from Seatule apparently fell through at the last minute. The trade was thought to involve either the New York Yankees. Philadelphia or Toronto.

The White Sox, runnored for weeks to have been eyeing New York Mets left-hander Sid Fernandez, surprised everyone - including Belcher - by sending two minor-league pitchers. Johnny Ruffin and Jeff Pierce. to the Reds to get him.

Belcher, whose contract also expires this season, thought his recent string of unimpressive outings had moved him off the trading block.

"I'm probably in one of my worst stretches of this year, and it might equal one of the worst stretches of my career," said the 31-year-old right-hander, who has failed to get past the fifth inning in live of six starts.

The White Sox, however, liked his late-season history.

Belcher usually finishes strongly and has successful playoff expericnce, having won a game for the Los Angeles Dodgers against Oakland in the 1988 World Series.

"He's a veteran who has been to the playoffs and the World Series," the White Sox' general manager. Ron Schuefer, said.

Chicago leads the AL West by 312 games, and Belcher will join them Monday at Arlington. Texas, for a three-game series against third-place Texas. He'll likely start Tuesday or Thursday. Manager Gene Lamoni said.

At Seattle, the media was preparing to learn the particulars of the Johnson deal when team president Chuck Armstrong entered the press box, drew a finger across his throat and announced. "Close, but no cigar.

Also Saturday, the Kansas City Royals picked up a second righthanded reliever in two days, this time getting Stan Belinda from the Pittsburgh Pirates for minor-league right-handers Jon Lieber and Dan Miceli

The Royals, second to Chicago in the AL West, acquired John Habyan from the Yankees to a three-way trade oo Friday, Belinda, 26, was 3-1 with 19 saves and a 3.61 ERA in 40 appearances covering 41 1-3 inoings with the Pirates.

Ewing Kauffman, Royals' Owner, Dies

KANSAS CITY, Missouri - Ewing Kauffman. the self-made billionaire who founded and owned the Kansas City Royals, has died at 76, the team said Sunday.

Kauffman had been fighting cancer for several months. He revealed on May 19 that he had bone CARCET.

"We do not have any details at this time, but we can confirm that Mr. Kaulfman has died," a Royals spokesman, Chris Stathos, said, Kauffman was too ill to attend a July 2 ceremony in which Royals Stadium was renamed Kauffman Stadium. His wife, Muriel, attended in his place.

"He said be never wanted anything named after him that had bricks and mortar," she said at the dedication. "I told him. There's a baseball diamond there, dear.

At his wife's urging, Kauffman bought the ex-pansion Royals, who began play in 1969. Royals Stadium was opened in 1973.

Kauffman, born on a southern Missouri farm, started a pharmaceutical business in the garage of his home in 1950 and built it into Marion Laboratories, an industry leader. When Marion merged with Dow Chemical in 1989 and Kauffman gave up control of the company, the value of his stock was estimated at $1.3 billion.

Kauffman's later years were devoted to charity and the Royals. He set up the Kauffman Foundauon to fund several unique projects in Kansas City, starting with Project Star, a program to reach youngsters how to resist peer pressure at the age they are most vulnerable to involvement with drugs.

In 1988, Kauffman went to Westpon High School - where he was graduated in 1934 - and promised the freshman class he would pay the entire cost of their college or vocational training if they agreed to avoid drugs, alcohol abuse and teenage parenthood, and graduate in good standing from high school.

Kauffman later expanded the program to Kansas City, Kansas, where it took in more than 1,000 students.

Jet Lag and the Time Clock Repairman

International Herald Tribun DARIS-Ever since he was an intern in his native England some 20 years ago, working 36-bour shifts and making life and death decisions to a zombie-like state, Martin Moore-Ede has been interested in the circadian, or day-night, rhythms that govern the body's alermess and fatigue. Now an associate professor of physiology at Harvard Medical School, he is also the director of the Institute for Circadian Physiology and CEO of Circadian Techoologies, a company with four divisions that include a consultancy for companies working on 24-hour schedules and a merchandising department offering products to belp reset the hiological time clocks of shift workers and travelers. Having flowo overnight from Boston to Paris, Moore-Ede was bright-eyed and alert thanks to one of his products, a personalized Circadian Travel Guide advising him when to seek or avoid bright light to hasten adjustment to the new time zone. He was also carrying a Jet Lag Com-bat Kit: a pair of very dark-lensed sunglasses and a white visor fitted with light hulbs.

"When I got off the airplane I had to wear the dark glasses because the dosage of light would set me back to Hawaii time," he said. "But then 1 needed to be exposed to light mid-morning."

Were he to make the 1212-hour trip from Were he to make the 125-hour trip from Paris 10 Hong Kong today, arriving on Aug. 3 at 10 A. M. local time, he would avoid hright light on arriving and seek it from noon to 3 P. M. The following day be would avoid bright light from 2 A. M. until 8 A. M. and seek it between 8 A. M. and 2 P. M., donning his light visor if, say, flying to Taiwan during those hours. Yes, he admits, other passengers are sometimes startled to see a traveler in the next seat illununate himself. "But no more than when they saw the first laptops. This is the downside of anything new." So far so good, but what happens to the executive who has forked out $379 for his Jet Lag Combat Kit (also available on a rental basis at $40 per round trip) and $28 tor his Circudian Trip Guide only to find out that his hotel room is not ready? Why, he stays in a Circadian Standard hotel where he can live in what Moore-Ede calls a time cocoon.

The room will be ready no matter what the arrival time and will bave blackout curtains to keep out unwanted light. The maid will not knock on the door or play a radio in the hall, there will be a visor and glasses at hand. 24-hour room service and a tax so the traveler need not stumble out line pilots, he hasn't yet come up with appliances suited to a botel room and "The mind-set of the hotel industry is that every traveler will immediately be on local time," Moore-Ede says. "The traveler who's on the typical pace of the international businessman, staying a day or two before going on to another place, doesn't want to adapt to the local time zone and yet hotels don't help."

The only European hotel with a circadiare getting even worse, he warns in his book, "The Twenty Four Hour Society" (pnblished hy Addison-Wesley), a hortaan room is the Rembrandt in London. The Rembrandt's sole circadian room has been available since spring and manager Jurgen Sutherland considers it a good marketing device to attract the profitable business trade. "Ideally, any hotel prefers business people because they're not paying out of their own pockets," Sutherland said. Circadian Standard hotels are hasically franchise operations with hotels paying Monre-Ede's company a commission in return for publicity and recommendations to his corporate clients. So far only the Rembrandt and the Tudor in New York bave signed up but Moore-Ede looks to a worldwide network of time cocoons.

argues, that a competent daytime worker will prove equally competent on a stressful night shift, Speaking of the Exxon Valdez disaster, which has so far cost the oil company $3 billion, with more than $50 billion Ultimately, Moore-Ede hopes that what in outstanding claims, he adds, "An error he calls a business etiquette will be estab-

by a junior person earning one-bundredth of a CEO's salary and whom the CEO has never met can bankrupt the company and deprive the CEO of a job."

Not surprisingly, some of America's biggest corporations and their CEOs are Moore-Ede's clients. He first became aware of the connection between circadian studies and industry when an article about his researches on the human biological time clock was picked up by a newspaper in Ogden, Utah, eliciting a query: "I have a hundred shift workers who cannot sleep, can you help?" Study revealed that the shift workers were in a weekly counterclockwise schedule that was equivalent to spending a week in Utah, a week in Paris, and a week in Tokyo, in an endless jet-laginduciog rotation.

Moore-Ede fixed up that one and many others. Schedules were reworked, temperature and noise patterns rearranged, lighting heightened. A Japanese company is even working on walting stimulating aromas through specially designed ventilators. Car accidents caused by sleepy workers going home, doctors who fall asleep while operating, oil refinery operators who doze off in front of their screens - Moore-Ede's conclusion is that the 24-hour society is, unless property managed, a dangerous one. His darkest thoughts are reserved for airlines who put their crews on dangerous-ly stressful schedules and from the passenger's point of view ignore the fact that day flights from the U.S. to Europe are far more beneficial (they won't eliminate jet lag but they do cut out the sleep deprivation that exacerbates it). "Night flights are really for the conve-nience of airlines. I think much of the problem is that they don't want to admit to the existence of jet lag, they want to sell you on the concept of exotic travel to foreign places.

Yet. Moore-Ede says, from one half to two thirds of passengers suffer from jet lag, including infants. The awful thing is that the people in the cockpit are baving the same problems.

'One of the things we're looking at is the very real problem of pilots being drowsy on long trips. Going across the Pacific is a big problem, there have been a number of recent cases where aircraft have tory volume that describes three air crashes caused by human error in its first two pages and notes that the major industrial accidents of recent years — Three Mile Island, Bhopal, Chernobyl and the Exxon drifted off course, It happens more often than people realize, these stories abound. The best person to talk to is a retired Valdez - all occurred late at night when those with hands-oo responsibility were captain whose job isn't at stake." The details are grim enough to make one take the lightbulbs out of one's visor and throw the sunglasses into the airsick bag. But not to worry: Moore-Ede is working on special products and systems to enhance air crew alertness. The Circadian Cockpit is on its way, not a second too soon.

Like, It's the Way It's Spoken

LANGUAGE

By Jack Rosenthal

N EW YORK - "No one cares about fussy things like 'like' anymore," my friend in advertising situation. I wish it was." The triumph of informal speech shows in the increasiogly conversaexclaimed, a bit touchy. I had chaltional tone of newspapers. Contrac-tions, which they once didn't permit lenged the grammar of a line she had written for a client; "Nobody in headlines, have become commonknows, like Domino's, how you like place. More and more, print journalists look to the oral tradition of ed, remembering how purists boiled up in anger over the aggres-sively colloquial 1954 commercial declaring that "Winston Tastes Good, Like a Cigarette should." But that was a generation of purists ago. My friend to advertising turned out to be right about mod-ern language. The Domino's ad appeared on national television hun-dreds of times last winter and elicited no outrage, no controversy, not one complaint.

Why? In a time of ever-longer schooling, why does American English usage seem to be degenerating? Because we are seeing, right before our ears, the triumph of Spoken English over Written Eng-lish. Indeed it is a triumph so complete that defending formal forms risks looking prissy. For much of America's history, written English established the national norm. Letters, books, newspapers, periodicals, telegrams these were the methods of general communication. And people did more than communicate with written language. They flaunted their verbal virtuosity with big words lettered, uncouth. Spoken language, on the other hand, has no spelling, and as for grammar, the principal rule is sim-People bave alwa ple: "Does it sound right?" By phone and phonograph, the tongue tide soon spread, eventually reach-ing full flood with the advent of talkies, radio, tape and television.

"Like" is just one example. Casual spoken usage infects formal usage in many ways — like the split anxious mothers have long whis-infinitive. English teachers can't pered "FHB" — family hold hack credibly urge that it be used with discrimination, not when their students' Star Trekked ears discern no fault in "to boldly go where no one (originally "no man") has gone before." English teachers find it ever harder to convey the subjunctive mood in a climate so casual that a federal agency head tells a report- vasive. Magazines bave sought to er. "It is not n 100 percent ideal convey themselves as instruments of clite cliques by changing from names to initials. Women's Wear Daily spawned W in 1973. House and Garden, which published its final issue in July, was known as HG during its last six years. TNR is what insiders call The New Republic

Fast-food restaurants also prize the insider cachet conferred by code. "Mickey D" is the name that boys in the 'hood gave McDonald's. "KFC" is the abbreviated nickname that Kentucky Fried Chicken finally adopted formally. More recently, code abbreviations have appeared with increasing frequency in pop culture. Only squares need coaching to know that the name of the rap group NWA stands for "Niggas With Attitude." The pre-teenager in the movie "Sleepless in Seattle" dismisses her boyfriend's father with an arcane "H and G," for "Hi and goodbye."

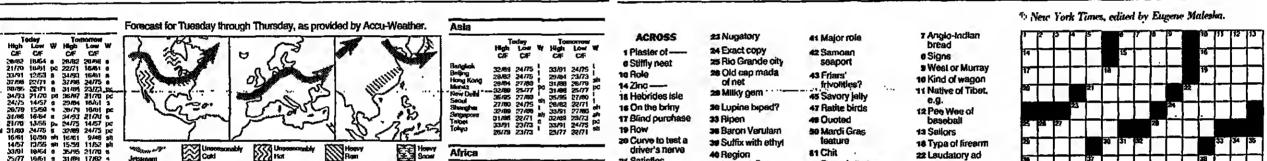

"OPP, yeah, you know me." chants the rapper, leaving clucless listeners free to believe he means "other people's property," when sophisticates know he has a sexual reference in mind. TFS - thanks for sharing — derives from the closing line of Narcotics Anonymous and other recovery-movement meetings. Now it's heard in casual, even sarcastic comment on, for instance, flatulence in the familv station wagon.

The electronic conferences conducted on computer networks provide another fertile source of cool code. Participants seem to favor initials both for efficiency and hip snobbery. They might type "LOL." laughing out loud, or even "ROTF," rolling on the floor. For strong distaste, the abbreviation of choice might be "SMTOE," sets my teeth on edge. Or, to show withering contempt for a beginner, one might write "RTM" — read the manual. Heated sentiment, cool code.

availability of computer spellcheckers: to decry them is as stuffy as objecting to the use of calcula-tors for arithmetic. Today, the use of "like" wrongly does not connote ignorance or jeopardize a deal. Colloquial speech sells pizza. Sounds right? Feels good. And yet there's a risk in unconditional surrender to the informality of spoken English. Everyone thinks out loud, impressionistically, but to base thought only on speech is to try nailing whispers to the wall. Writing, whether clear or clouded, freezes thought and offers it up for inspection. The triumph of oral forms and norms is welcome for its dynamism, but there's still plenty of reason to respect the rules. Language that sounds right can none-theless steer us wrong. Why do Americans abbreviate so much? In a society organized from and starcby grammar. Spelling the AAA for roadside emergencies counted. To be caught in "accomo-date" or "harrass" was to look un-population Growth, shorthand is an obvious reason. Another, notso-obvious reason is coming into
